Social Distancing Tip: Go for a walk outside

Although we are advised to limit social interactions and stay home as much as possible, that does not mean we are not allowed to go outside and get some fresh air.

So long as you are practicing proper social distancing — staying at least six feet away from others — you should be fine.
DISCONNECT
Take a break from reading, watching or listening to news stories including those on social media.

MOVE
Take a walk. Plant a garden. Do a virtual work out class. Stretch. Meditate. Do activities that you enjoy.

SELF CARE

STAY IN TOUCH
Share your concerns and how you are feeling with friends or family members. Maintain healthy relationships, and build a strong support system. Seek help from a doctor, clergy person or counselor. Remember to continue to practice social distancing.
5 Ways to Deal with Anxiety

Everyone has feelings of anxiety, nervousness, tension, and stress from time to time. Here are 5 ways to help manage them:

1. Become a relaxation expert. We all think we know how to relax. But chilling out in front of the TV or computer isn’t true relaxation. (Depending on what you’re watching or doing, it could even make you more tense.) The same is true for alcohol, drugs, or tobacco. They may seem to relieve anxiety or stress, but it’s a false state of relaxation that’s only temporary. What the body really needs is daily practice of a relaxation technique — like deep breathing, tai chi, or yoga — that has a physical effect on the mind. For example, deep breathing helps to relax a major nerve that runs from the diaphragm to the brain, sending a message to the entire body to let go and loosen up.

2. Get enough sleep, nourishment, and exercise. Want your mind and body to feel peaceful and strong enough to handle life’s ups and downs? Get the right amount of sleep for your needs — not too much or too little. Eat well: Choose fruit, vegetables, lean proteins, and whole grains for long-term energy (instead of the short bursts that come from too much sugar or caffeine). And exercise to send oxygen to every cell in the body so your brain and body can operate at their best.

3. Connect with others. Spend time with friends or family. Organized activities are great, but just hanging out works too. Doing things with those we feel close to deepens our bonds, allowing us to feel supported and secure. And the fun and sharing that go with it allow us to feel happier and less upset about things. If you feel worried or nervous about something, talking about it with someone who listens and cares can help you feel more understood and better able to cope. You’ll be reminded that everyone has these feelings sometimes. You’re not alone.

4. Connect with nature. Heading out for a walk in the park or a hike in the woods can help anyone feel peaceful and grounded. (Choose somewhere you feel safe so you can relax and enjoy your surroundings.) Walking, hiking, trail biking, or snowshoeing offer the additional benefit of exercise. Invite a friend or two — or a family member — along and enjoy feeling connected to people as well.

5. Pay attention to the good things. A great way to keep our minds off the worry track is to focus our thoughts on things that are good, beautiful, and positive. Appreciate the small, everyday blessings. Allow yourself to dream, wish, and imagine the best that could happen.

Layla Salha’s Quote of the Week:

“Life doesn’t require that we be the best, only that we try our best”

Favorite thing to do during the quarantine? My favorite thing to do while staying safe at home is sleeping.

What are you binge watching? I have been binge watching many different shows like Vampire Diaries and The Office.

What are you listening to? I don’t really have a favorite song I like to listen to a lot of different types of music.

Favorite food? My favorite food is tacos.

I can’t wait until quarantine is over so I can get back to my normal life.
